◀ HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

SPMS Biweekly e-Bulletin | 5 April 2017

◀ CELEBRATE NTU 2017

SPMS faculty members bagged four awards at this year's Celebrate NTU. Congratulations to Assoc Prof Chua Chek Beng, Asst Prof Chong Yidong and Dr Tang Wee Kee who won the Nanyang Education Award and also to Assoc Prof Zhang Baile who won the Nanyang Research Award (Young Investigator). The Nanyang Education Award is the highest honour conferred by the University to faculty members in the field of teaching, while the Nanyang Research Award (Young Investigator) recognises individuals aged 39 and below, who have made outstanding contributions in extending the frontiers of knowledge.

◀ PHYSICS DAY ON 6 APRIL

PAP students, join us for a day of fun at the Physics Day organised by SPMS Club Physics Division on 6 April from 11am to 4pm. There will be quizzes to keep your mind engaged, a sure-win lucky draw, and a free-flow of popcorn and candy floss.

◀ COLLEGE ADVISORY BOARD

CoS' and SPMS' management met up with the College Advisory Board (CAB) recently in mid-March to discuss on how to improve the employability of our students. The CAB, comprises senior representatives from EDB Investments, Bio3D, FairEx, Starhub, GovTech, Mitsui Chemicals Asia Pacific, e2i and Singapore Airlines, was formed to provide inputs on industry and market trends to support the College's plan for future directions.

◀ WE'D LIKE TO HEAR FROM YOU

Dear SPMS Year 4 students, we want your feedback on your undergraduate experience in SPMS. Complete the survey by 7 April and stand a chance to win a $50 Takashimaya voucher (3 winners).
